FOG, ERROR OF JUDGMENT, IS CRASH CAUSE

Report Of Inquiry Into TCA Accident Is Made Public Friday

OTTAWA, Dec. 2.—Fog and a fatal error of judgment on the part of First Pilot David Muir, were responsible for the crash of a Trans-Canada Airlines mail plane at Regina, Nov. 18, with death to Muir and his co-pilot, Jack Herald, an official board of inquiry report in Trans-Canada today.

With no evidence of mechanical failure, the board headed by Squadron Leader A. L. Ferrier, chief transportation engineer of the department, expressed the opinion a ground fog might have deceived Muir of a horizon to gauge his height, with the result he possibly mistook the nose of the machine for ground and hit the ground.

FRANCE WARNED THAT ITALY IS READY TO MARCH

ROME, Dec. 2.—Virginia Gayda, fascist editor who often reflects Premier Mussolini's own views, warned France today that Italy is ready to march into Rome, "if France—if it is necessary."

Gayda's declaration in the newspaper Giornale d'Italia accentuated the strain of Italian-French relations since Italian troops demonstrated, in the presence of Duce, for recognition of Italian interests in Tunis, France's North African protectorate.

COMMISSIONER PROBES PRICE RADIO TUBES

Manning Reports Investigation To Be Made Due To High Cost

Appointment of R. J. Gaunt, solicitor in the trade and industry department as a commissioner to investigate the reported enhanced price of radio tubes in this province, was announced Friday by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry.

Mr. Manning, in making his announcement, stated: "There is evidence submitted to the department that unduly enhanced prices for radio tubes are being maintained."

He said that the department will take the necessary steps to fix a maximum in accordance with provisions of the Trade and Industry Act.

Mr. Gaunt is leaving for Calgary on Friday night where he will confer with James J. Frazer, M.C., solicitor in the trade and industry department who is in Calgary in preparation for the resumption of sittings of the McMillen Royal Commission.

McMillen Royal Commission probing the oil and gas industry, sales and places of oilings have not yet been decided.

At present there is a case before the courts where a company dealing in radio tubes is suing a firm for selling tubes at $2 line than the fixed price in Canada, despite the fact that the lower price takes into account freight, duty, sales and other costs.

Mine Expert Says North Development Boon For Edmonton

D. R. MacDougall Sees Bright Future For Yellowknife Mining Area as Gold Discoveries Made Daily

There is a tremendous future for the Yellowknife mining area in the North West Territories, and for Edmonton as the gateway to this new golden empire in the north and the supply house for the thousands of miners and businessmen who will follow in the wake of the miners.

This is the considered opinion of D. R. MacDougall, director of several mining companies, and a field supervisor of the Yellowknife mines in the Gordon Lake area for the past four years.

As a mining engineer, he has watched gold mining in Canada for the past 20 years.

"I can picture before another score of years have passed, a dozen mines with populations ranging from 10,000 to 20,000 where there were only a few scattered mining camps," he said.

No Objection at Ottawa

Premier Aberhart and Hon. Solon Low met Mon. Charles Dunning on Wednesday, had a "most satisfactory" interview, and will head for home almost immediately as the Premier did not anticipate any further interviews would be necessary. The subject of discussion was the refunding of Alberta's provincial debt, which the bond-holders claim calls for the payment of more than $7,500,000 per year interest, and on which the province is now paying or tendering their half the amount yearly under a reducing statute which, not having been tested in the courts, may or may not be good law.

The importance of refunding at low rates acceptable to the bond-holders is obvious. What plan the Alberta Ministers had to propose has not been announced, but the "most satisfactory" comment is encouraging as to the outlook for early action. Since only one interview was apparently needed to get federal agreement, the plan may be supposed to be one immediately acceptable to the Dominion, or one in which the province will proceed on its own without requiring assistance from Ottawa.

A scheme of either or any kind will be to the good so long as it brings the interest charges down to a payable figure and lays the spectre of a prospective law-suit.

Security Comes First

It is the right of any person to quit his job—but not at all times. National interests take precedence over the freedom of the individual, in this as in other matters. Five million Frenchmen threatened to stage a one-day strike, in protest because their working week had been arbitrarily lengthened from 40 to 48 hours. The strike would have dislocated French industry, trade, utility services and transportation, but only for a day. That they did not have wrecked the country. At most it would have imposed inconveniences, and some hardships, on great numbers of people. These prospective results would not be serious enough to cause Premier Daladier to call out the troops and tell the intending strikers they must stay on the job. Which he did for a day. That they did not must have been the indirect and external effects of the strike, not the direct and immediate effects, the Premier was thinking about. With the dictators on the march, this is no time for authority to show weakness in the one continental country of first magnitude that stands for democratic government. And no time for France to give an impression abroad that its defensive power might be paralyzed at the moment of attack, by an industrial uprising.

Premier Daladier has no more faith than Mr. Chamberlain in the pacific pretensions of his neighbors, and he has even more cause to watch them, because they are closer at hand. If France and its colonial empire are to be free from attack it must present a solid front to the aggressors. That was why Daladier suppressed the strike, at the risk of starting a civil war.

Government House

Government House at Edmonton was closed, primarily, to save money. And— it may as well be said—also because of a feeling, by no means confined to Social Credit members of the legislature, that it had not always been maintained on a scale in keeping with the ideal of democratic simplicity. Alberta has no more than themselves inescapable to the worth of proper pomp and ceremony, nor regardless of the dignity which attaches to the office of the Lieutenant-Governor of the province. But anything which seems to tend to the encouragement of snobbery and extravagance at the public expense is something very different.

Since the property is standing idle and useless, the real saving that is effected by keeping it so is a calculation requiring that a good many miles be taken into account other than the figures showing in the table of expenditures for upkeep. As for the danger of it becoming too extensively or too conspicuously a headquarters for the social elite, that would be remote during the incumbency of the present Lieutenant-Governor; and in any case the expense bill of maintaining the House in occupancy would be within control of the legislature.

The prospective visit of the King and Queen has created a situation which was not contemplated when the official residence was closed. But it is not a situation peculiar to Alberta. Some of the other provinces do not maintain gubernatorial residences, notably Ontario, the richest of all the provinces—and the most vocally loyal. How to fittingly entertain Their Majesties here is a problem, but one which exists also at Toronto and elsewhere, and Alberta may follow the lead given at these other provincial capitals. However this is arranged, to open Government House for the occasion only, and then close it again, would be a ridiculous procedure.

What of Next Year?

No one needs to be told that when parliament meets again in January one of the questions with which it will have to deal is that of pegging the price of next year's wheat. The present outlook forbids any expectation that world prices will soon go high enough to restore wheat-growing to the self-dependent status. And it is strongly probable that sharp opposition will be offered to continuance of the pegging policy. The protests from Premier Hepburn and other spokesmen of opinion in the eastern provinces are likely to be heard again, in the Commons. And it will not do to forget those are the provinces which elect an overwhelming majority of the members.

To westerners it is clear enough that a pegged price of 80 cents does not work out to a figure that would make wheat-growing profitable over most of the prairies. This is the price at Fort William for No. 1 Northern. But the wheat is not grown at Fort William; nor is much No. 1 Northern grown anywhere. Eighty cents for the top grade at Fort William is calculated to mean about 43 cents a bushel for the average run of wheat to the mid-prairie growers. And no farmer can maintain himself on 43 cent wheat, to say nothing about paying off an accumulation of debt.

But the practical question to be faced is whether anything more than 80 cents would be allowed by public opinion in the older provinces as registered by their members in parliament. That these would support, or even tolerate, a scheme to pay more than the 80 cent rate for all the wheat grown in the west is at best a doubtful proposition. For the inconvenient fact is that, if market prices stay down, the bigger wheat crop the higher the tax-payers will be hit and the louder the eastern taxpayer will howl.

At 80 cent base price for the whole western crop is probably as high a figure as could be hoped for.

Twenty-one thousand new volunteers for the Royal Air Force is pretty good evidence that young Britishers are not staking everything on the good intentions of the dictators, however much they may hope these gentlemen will prove better than their records.

Grain Kings

Two brothers sitting side by side on twin thrones is something to be noted, and when both boys are Canadians and both of them win awards at the world's biggest grain show, it is something to be noted again. They with their father occupied a farm at Westley, Alberta (Herman Trella house town), and they are the Right boys—F. and W. Justyn, crowned kings of the Chicago International. That award goes there but no Canadian has to anyone else—proof if it's needed of Canadian wheat quality—but the Right exhibit has been called one of the finest ever seen. Congratulations to them both.—Wesley Free Press.

Chamberlain's Policy of Drift

The House of Commons has another chance of seeking enlightenment on what, there is reason to fear, is an important change in our defense policy. The lesson of Munich, that to most of us, has seemed clear is that we must raise our defenses to a point that will give us adequate protection against possible aggression from Germany and Italy. That does not preclude "appeasement"; it is the only condition of "appeasement" can be obtained without the sacrifice of everything, materially and spiritually. Britain is supposed to stand on a point of defense in our air strength. If Britain and France cannot offer effective resistance to possible attack by Germany, and if their naval and military strength is largely outweighed, they are in a dangerously weak position. France, we know, is relatively weak in the air (weaker than Italy) and the responsibility is even greater than if we had no commitments to France and no self-interest in preventing her defeat. Mr. Baldwin recognized the danger when he laid down his famous rule:

His Majesty's Government are determined in no conditions to accept any position of inferiority with regard to what Air Force may be raised in the future.

That was in 1934, but although Germany soon overhauled us in numbers the ideal remained. Lord Swinton (on May 12 this year), while Secretary for Air, said that the phrase "wholly adequate for our necessities," his definition was not widely different in effect:

What the Government have to be satisfied of is that an attack may be met by a potential aggressor. There are two things to be considered. There is the active defense, the fighter defense, the anti-aircraft defense which must be sufficient to hold out. The size of that defensive force must obviously be conditioned objectively by the size of the aggressor's force. It is not a matter of choice. Secondly, it is and always will remain absolutely necessary to have a very strong counter-offensive force.

A few days later the Prime Minister, Mr. Chamberlain, was asked to make a statement of change of front. He replied (May 25):

I do not accept (Mr. Dalton's) statement that we have abandoned the idea of air attack, but I regret that we have reduced the number of machines which constitute first-line strength to only one of many. The number of machines which have to be taken into account. I very much regret that we have reduced the number of machines which have to be taken into account. I very much regret that we have reduced the number of machines which have to be taken into account.

Mr. Chamberlain, as Mr. Lees-Smith pointed out last week, appeared to have accepted the British interpretation of parity as parity of first-line strength and substituted for it a wholly indefinite one. Whence do we stand now? The consequence of Munich, as Mr. Chamberlain has declared, to make us speed up the increases in our air armaments. Sir Kingsley Wood's speech on Thursday was a cutting down of the prospective rate of increase of our offensive force. Does this arise from our mere incapacity to produce enough of both fighters and bombers, or does it arise from our unwillingness to do so? It is because our program of bombers—an integral part of sound defense would be displacing to Herr Hitler? If there were to be limitation of armaments of the sort Hitler is credited with desiring it would almost certainly be a limitation of bombers, and on the basis of our present program of increasing the rate of increase in a ratio of three to one, Herr Hitler might easily suggest a ratio in the case of bombers of one to one.

Sir Kingsley Wood will no doubt indignantly deny this interpretation. In his speech on Thursday he repeated the doctrine that our Air Force must be "adequate for our necessities" and claimed that this would be secured by the present program and by the further additions which we now propose to make. Seeing that the further additions are not on a large scale (that is the only inference to be drawn from such statements as he gave) it is not surprising that changes are to be made in the method or scale of production, that the idea of a Ministry of Supply is firmly branded aside, most we not suppose that the Government are going back on the principles laid down by Mr. Baldwin and Lord Swinton? The effect of the Munich settlement has been to reduce the scale of our armaments, strategic advantages by relieving the pressure on her eastern frontiers. If the size of our Air Force is to be "adequate for our necessities," the size of the force which may possibly be brought against it, it would now need to be strengthened even if it were already equal to that of Germany. And, as we all know, we are not there. The fact that France still more so, both in present strength and in potential strength within the next three or four years. The Government are later to be judged more by their silence than by their speech, and when we miss in either the one or the other the Government are to be judged more by their silence than by their speech, and when we miss in either the one or the other the Government are to be judged more by their silence than by their speech.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

When President Lincoln signed the famous Emancipation Proclamation in 1863 at the close of the Civil War, he little thought that a Queen of England would some day use as her bedroom the office in which he signed the Proclamation. Yet this the whirling of Fate has done in the past. In announcing ARQUEEN WILL USE the room for the visit of LINCOLN'S ROOM. Their Majesties to the White House for three days.

Next June, Mrs. Roosevelt says the suite in the southeast wing has been assigned to Her Majesty. The four palaces of the suite, the second floor of the White House are architecturally alike. Each consists of a large bedroom with a smaller bedroom or sitting room and a bathroom.

From the days of Andrew Jackson down to Theodore Roosevelt, the large room of the southeast suite—the "blue room"—was used by successive presidents as a personal office. It is full of associations. It is this room that saw Her Majesty's bedroom. King George will occupy the north-east suite. President Roosevelt and family occupy the southeast suite and rooms adjoining east and west. It will be quite a family affair under the White House roof.

In addition to the three days at the White House in Washington, Their Majesties will spend one day in New York, and visit the World's Fair. Don't forget it was King George's great-grandfather, the Prince Consort of Victoria, who set the fashion in World Fairs, in the Crystal Palace Exhibition of 1851.

Any abhorrence voiced in Canada against the Nazi pogroms declared against the unfortunate Jews in Germany, is mild by comparison with the denunciation uttered by leaders of all parties and creeds in United States. It may have internal resonance. Already Mr. La Follette, President Roosevelt in his presidential election, has urged Governor Lehman of New York to make the next presidential candidate, Governor Lehman a Jew. Strangers things have happened in the American political scene. The Nazi atrocities by making a Jew president of United States.

One of the most striking expressions of sympathy with oppressed Jewry is the public fund opened by popular demand in United States to defray the 17-year-old youth who shot and killed Ernst von Rath with "the best counsel money can buy." I can recall no similar happening, where a nation on the other side of the globe, not a party to the quarrel, has opened a public fund to defend a single refugee writing a word to another nation charged with the assassination of an official of a friendly country. Donations are accepted only from non-Jews.

Mr. Vincent de Moro-Graff, noted criminal avowed defender of the youth Herchel Grynszpan. M. de Moro-Graff appeared for the defense of Henri Landru, notorious French murderer, and for Eugene Weidmann, the German murderer who confessed to six slayings, including that of Jean de Koven, the 23-year-old Brooklyn dancer, and for Eugene Weidmann, the German murderer who confessed to six slayings, including that of Jean de Koven, the 23-year-old Brooklyn dancer.

Avocat de Moro-Graff will be able to make a stronger appeal to French sympathy in defence of the 17-year-old youth who shot von Rath, than in the case of such criminals as Landru and Weidmann. The youth of Grynszpan, who had been in a frantic state of mind for 48 hours before the shooting, after that suffering from his parents in Germany, his aunt and uncle tried to cheer him, with assurances that they would try and assist his parents to come to France, he boy quarrelled with them, and talked wildly of committing suicide.

What elements for a powerful French lawyer to appeal to the sympathies of a jury?

Let's go old-fashioned. If there were not such a serious side to it all, we might be laughing at the youth of Grynszpan and the "emancipated" young things, who have tried to throw into the scrap-heap the tested standards of life which the age have set up. "Old-fashioned" is their title of derision and condemnation—as if all the essential things of life had not been old-fashioned long before Abraham Lincoln.

Life's ancient code of character and conduct and good taste cannot be overturned by calling it "fuzzy." Perhaps these pseudo-reformers who no longer have dealings with the Bible, should be reminded that the Bible still has dealings with them. One does not alter the law of gravitation by the truth of derision.

Many more upon wayward and wandering feet. O Lord, May they find "The Way, The Truth and the Life." Amen.

Read Jeremiah 6:17.

When Man Meets Dog

Editor Bulletin: May I offer advice by indicating a very simple method to keep on all dogs, even the most vicious? Drop on all fours. There's not a dog in the world that would dare approach you in that commanding position. It is not likely that he will renew his attack. But, if he does, get down on all fours again, move boldly toward him and watch him slink away. How often, if you wish to inflame the height of terror upon that dog, stand on your hands and knees. K. V. BROWN.

A Refugee Speaks

Editor Bulletin: I am astonished that I have so far not found one single refugee writing a word to the newspapers on that subject. Since these weeks over here I have given you the few words which might be of interest to your readers.

First of all it is an absolute miracle to charge the German people as a whole with all the atrocities and crimes which have been committed since the first of September 1939. I am sure that five or six one-half million men in any country would be able to do all of this. I am sure that five or six one-half million men in any country would be able to do all of this. I am sure that five or six one-half million men in any country would be able to do all of this.

But you must consider that the same refugee exercised against the Jews is shown in Germany. I know the so-called Aryan, so that not one of the latter category would dare to open his mouth to criticize the feelings he has for the ruthless crimes which a very small number of gangsters are committing perpetually.

There is only one way to put an end to these psychopathic violations of the most primitive human rights: that is, to get all the makers of laws, in U.S.A., England, France, Russia and all the other European countries called back in union their Ambassadors to show to the Nations the real situation. The people that their rulers are committing would be outside of the civilized world.

You do not understand that the whole population of Europe has been deprived for five or six months of even the most primitive means of information, but get stuffed from the early morning till night by ridiculous lies.

We cannot say that Germany received the government she deserved—because I believe there is not one people in any wilderness of this world who should be punished in that terrible fashion.

Millions of decent German families are suffering from the consequences of the present war. The biggest part of the army and navy men would willingly sacrifice their lives for their country. They have possessed the youth and the old people in the civilized world in denying God, unless the big nations of this world are determined to stop the war to isolate and quarantine the government which is repeating the crimes in Belgium and the crimes of the Nazis during the World War.

Tell your readers that as long as we have not help from outside the German people are a great system delivered from Adolf Hitler.

RUSSIAN U. S. RELATIONS MAY NOT BE GOOD

By CHARLES R. NUTTER
Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—President Roosevelt's continued delay in appointing a new ambassador to Moscow has created an impression in diplomatic circles here that American relations with Russia may have arrived at the same state of chilly doubt as those with Germany.

Neither the United States nor Germany has any ambassador at each other's capital and the same situation holds with regard to the United States and Russia.

President Roosevelt has allowed the Moscow post to stand vacant since Ambassador Joseph G. Davis was transferred to Brussels in June. He said this week he did not know when he would appoint a new envoy.

The Kremlin meanwhile has let it be known Ambassador Alexander A. Troyanovsky, who went home on leave, would not return to Washington. There are indications his successor will not be named until Roosevelt has acted.

Municipal Districts Asked to Ponder Co-operation Scheme

CALGARY, Dec. 2.—Executive of the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts Thursday was instructed by delegates at the 15th annual convention to investigate a co-operative purchasing scheme between the Alberta and Saskatchewan municipal organizations.

The decision followed an address by J. J. McGowan, secretary of the Saskatchewan organization, who said the co-operative buying in his province had saved municipal units $130,000 in the last few years.

Co-operative buying in Alberta saved $20 last year, the association's report for 1938 totaled $600.

Joint purchasing with Regina fire departments has resulted in savings of $100,000 in the two provinces.

Paul F. Furness of Halkirk was elected president for 1939. Harry W. Bright of Macleod was elected vice-president by acclamation. N. D. Dineen, secretary, was elected. W. Wheatley, chairman, will fill the two districts for 1939.

A resolution asked each government to take action in control of the two districts in order to give free examination and treatment similar to that taken for control of social diseases.

The resolution also asked that the German people through their bodies at the French occupation of the Ruhr should be treated.

"By the suffering and indignities inflicted upon Germany we have prepared us for the reaction which confronts us now and we have our share of responsibility for the suffering of Jews and Christians in Germany at this moment," the archbishop went on.

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

Get 'Em Early
An Old Feud
Odds and Ends

THESE seem to be every reason to believe that Promoter Fred Osborne struck oil when he signed Eddie Martinelli of Los Angeles to fight Eddie Weinstock here December 13. The battle has captured the imagination of the fans in a way that no other fight ever has in Edmonton as far as I can remember. For the first time since the first Weinstock-Tony class, the evening really couldn't get going.

For the benefit of those who read this column daily—or as often as their stamina will allow—in passing put the tip to get your money quick. It is a business to see the fight. Two line quarters. This is not bad, for from present indications the house will be sold out without any high pressure press agency. There will be no radio broadcast allowed on this fight.

Although reservations listing will not start until Monday, there has already been a month interest shown in the country surrounding the Edmonton that the Greyhound Bus lines are planning to run special fight buses over the main highways. It is expected that one bus will start from Ponoka, another from Viking and one or two more from other points, leaving shortly after 6:00 p.m. and returning after the fight. Glen Touchin is already booking reservations for bus and fight tickets at his Viking hotel.

Stable Martinelli will leave for Edmonton in a day or two. He has considerable respect for Weinstock and when he gets in a good week of training he will be coming out to see the fight. It is said that he is not a churchman, as we say in old Mexico—he can't be tame! Three times he has been knocked out. He is a tough one, but he has been knocked out three times. He is a tough one, but he has been knocked out three times.

Flying Frenchmen Shutout Bruins 2-0

Goalie Claude Bourque Holds Potent Bruins Scoreless for First Time This Season

MONTREAL, Dec. 2.—Montreal Canadiens scored the season's first shutout against Boston last night as they defeated Bruins 2-0 in their second National Hockey League win of the season.

With a victory over Detroit Red Wings and a draw with New York Americans in their last two starts, the Flying Frenchmen sped to victory over the Bruins on a goal by Toe Blake in the first period and another by Johnny Gagnon in the third.

The victory brought Claude Bourque, who recently moved from amateur ranks to replace Will Gaudin in the net, his first NHL shutout.

COSTLY PENALTY
While Jack Portland, big Boston defenseman, was off for tripping George Brown, Blake put the finishing touch to a play by Steve Reine and Phil Haynes.

Haynes and Blake also figured in the second tally, which sent a crowd of close to 6,000 mostly to Detroit. Blake laid down a beautiful delivery pass to Gagnon for the goal.

LINEUPS
Boston: Brimsek; Shorr, Poirier.

Apiently As Detroit Red Wings Triumph 4-1

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—In a game by newly-acquired Tiny Thompson, Detroit Red Wings surged to a 4-1 win last night over the champion Chicago Black Hawks on double-scoring efforts by Marty Barry and Eddie Ware.

Strathcona Grid Squad Ready For Saturday Tilt

It will be a determined band of footballers that Cyril Burchell will lead into battle Saturday afternoon at the Varsity grid when Strathcona high meets Lethbridge Collegiate in the Provincial High School Senior Rugby play-off. Seona has waited for a long time for this game and they will be definitely shooting the works when they clash with the southern champions. The game will start at 2 p.m.

To date Seona has had a very successful season and have won a state defeat in high school competition and they aim to have their record unblemished. In an elimination series with Victoria and Seona they came through with flying colors, whipping Victoria 15-0 and thumping Seona 19-0 to win the Northern Alberta crown.

FINE PASSING
Strathcona's attack has been built around a brilliant passing attack featuring Jerry Collins and Reener Kaufman. Collins who is a halfback and one of the finest passers ever to appear in high school football in Edmonton, is the sparkplug of the squad and is dangerous at all times. Not only is he passing hand but he is a fine line player.

Two shorts of ice are nearly ready but the mild weather has delayed the opening of the season.

NORTH CENTRAL LOOP WILL TRY CANADIAN ROUGE

U.S. Gridders Hope Reduce Tie Contests

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Americans to still the walls that fall the autumn air over the football games, the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference plans to borrow the rouge from Canadian football for trial next spring. If it is considered successful in the practice sessions it will be used next fall.

Representatives of North Dakota University, North Dakota State College, South Dakota State, South Dakota University, Iowa State Teachers, Morris College and Omaha University voted Wednesday to test adaptation of the Canadian rule to the American game.

Coaches assembled at the meeting were of the opinion the rouge was a point by turning into the end zone and blocking the return.

How would you make two hopes like the younger try hope for more cold and snow so as to ski, skate and play hockey and the older heads hope for a continuation of our weather to keep the cold and ice bills down. Of course the kids are not interested in carrying out the wishes.
